FOUR FEET TWO DISCHARGE

In North Main Street Raid Cases—Proprietor of Place Found

Guilty of Keeping Disorderly House—Fined $25 and Costs—Others Fined on Gambling Charge.

There was a three hour trial in the police court on Thursday afternoon, which concluded shortly after six, of the continued cases against the six men arrested on Tuesday at a sliding door in a raid by the police at No. 114 North Main street. The proprietor of the place, Francis Stashoff, was found guilty of keeping a disorderly house. He was fined $25 and costs amounting in all to $33.45 which he paid. Jacob Garshank and Michael Breaki, and John Tubsaki were each found guilty and fined $5 and costs on charge of gambling. They each paid $13.22. Adam Gavronski and John Wilski, also accused in the gambling charge were found not guilty and were released. The accused were all represented by Attorney Thomas M. Shields. City Attorney John D. Hall prosecuted the cases and Judge John H. Barnes was on the bench.

Albert Gordon, a seller of religious books was the first witness. He testified to the reputation of the place where he had heard of gambling going on, and that it was a bad house and that he had heard of it. He had heard of it and told of having heard of one man who had lost $45 there. He had seen French girls there last December.

Sergeant John H. Kane, who was in charge of the police party that made the raid and arrests testified to having listened outside the house with Policeman Casey and hearing cards shuffling and money jingling earlier in the evening. He told of gaining entrance at the back door. When inside he saw through a sliding door into another room and saw four men playing cards. He saw no one else but there were two beer bottles on the table nearby empty, and he pointed out Gavronski, Tubsaki and Garshank as the three men in whose hands he saw cards. In their testimony later they denied that they were playing at all. The sergeant told of having seen a certain married woman go to the house at a late hour at night on several occasions. When Attorney Shields insisted on having the woman's name City Attorney Hall said he thought it was not necessary to bring it out in public and the officer was allowed to whisper it to the attorney, who in turn whispered it to the defendant, Stashoff.

Others also testified for the prosecution and all the accused testified in their own defense. The proprietor, Stashoff, explained the circumstances by stating that he had been in his place at shortly before 11 o'clock and had invited the men upstairs to play a game of cards. He had been married about two weeks ago. All the accused testified along similar lines.

City Attorney Hall submitted the case without argument, but Attorney Shields made an argument when the evidence was all in.
